

Las Perdices Albarino Reserva

Tasting Notes

Pale yellow colour with greenish gold highlights. The complexity of this wine fluctuates between its notes of fruit (apricot, apple and citric fruits), of flowers (white flowers, jasmine) and of herbs (fresh-cut grass, fennel). Unctuous on the palate, voluminous, with a velvety sensation to complement its freshness and with a plethora of nuances. Ideal to accompany every type of fish and shellfish in all their preparations.

About The Producer

Las Perdices

In the early 1950s, Don Juan Munoz-Lopez arrived from Andalucia to farm grapevines. To him work is always more important than recognition and soil marks the rhythm of farm work. In 2004, his sons decided to build a winery to produce high-quality wines with great fascination for innovation. In April that same year, they founded Las Perdices in the heart of their vineyard in Agrelo where they grew up and learned how to make wine. The winery holds a capacity of 1,200,000 litres in stainless steel tanks of various capacities in order to optimize processes and better distribute their finest products.
